ANALYSIS OF THE NERDS

With Wormser's help, FHM investigates the scientific claims of Revenge of the Nerds

As a teaching aid, Revenge of the Nerds taught us acceptance, stair-diving and science. "The Tri-Lams were the brightest minds at Adams College," boasts a now 31-year-old Andrew "Wormser" Cassese. "There's no way the science in the film wouldn't be spot on." FHM puts Wormser's boasts—and the film's outrageous claims—to the test.

CAN A PILL BEAT BOOZE?

Nerds says The Tri-Lams feed Takashi a concoction that stops the effects of alcohol. Science says "RU-21 helps you metabolize the toxic byproducts of alcohol that cause hangovers," says Emil Chiaberi of Spirit Sciences. "But unfortunately it can't prevent alcohol's immediate effects. Some Asians are also deficient in ALDH2 enzymes and get bad hangovers."

ARE LADY-GOATS OVERLY HORNY?

Nerds says Hottie Betty is aroused; her boyfriend, Stan, says she's "like a goat." Science says "Female goats are only sexually receptive during their day of ovulation," explains Dr. Larry Katz, associate professor of animal sciences at Rutgers University. "Saying a woman is like a goat is an insult; I'd have said, 'Betty, you're like a goat in heat.'"

CAN LIQUID HEAT BE WITHSTOOD?

Nerds says The nerds put liquid heat in the jocks' jocks. Ogre grunts through the pain. Science says "The hottest analgesics have a red-pepper extract called capsaicin," says Miami Dolphins' assistant trainer Ben Westby. "When you sweat, it burns. But a tough guy could handle it—it's mind over matter. Pranks like that happen two or three times a year here."

WILL A FLOPPY JAVELIN FLY?

Nerds says Wormser's wobbly design works with Lamar's limp-wristed style. Science says "The faster you throw a javelin, the farther it goes. You can't do that limp-wristed," insists Dr. Mont Hubbard, professor of aeronautics at UC Davis. "Also, a fifth of the velocity is in your run-up speed. Jocks are going to do that better than nerds."
